

Intensive Masterclass on the Map of Meaning™

If you are taking a stand to have work meaningful for you and for your workplace, this is the masterclass for you. In it you'll work with the Map of Meaning to create work that's worth doing and a life that's worth living.

The Map of Meaning does not tell you what to do. Rather, it reconnects you with what deeply matters to you. You can then use this to strengthen what you love about your work and life, transform what you don't and bring meaning for yourself and your workplace.

The two-day workshop is for leaders and change makers. Once you understand how to work with the Map of Meaning you can use it consciously in a wide variety of work and life situations. It is an indispensable tool if you work with others or with organisations.

"I learnt about the Map of Meaning eight years ago and I've used it ever since. If you ever wonder what's the point of my life? What on earth am I going to do? the Map of Meaning guides you to what to look for and what to look at so you can create your own answers. It's a compass for a journey you are going to make." Penny Kennedy

The Map of Meaning is based on over fifteen year's empirical research around the world. You can use it in a wide variety of work and life situations. So, though on the first day we use the Map of Meaning for ourselves and our own work and life, the Map of Meaning is an indispensable tool for organisational and social change makers and leaders – wherever you are in the organisation.

Jane Davis, OD consultant in New Zealand says, "The Map of Meaning is a brilliant addition to my toolkit. Since I was trained I've used the map nearly every week in some way. If there's one tool HR and OD people should be Trained in, this is it!"
